

State and Local Minimum and Tipped Wage Rates

As of January 2024

The federal Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) establishes minimum wage and overtime requirements for virtually all employers. If you think your business or employee isn't covered by the FLSA, we recommend consulting an employment law attorney. The current federal minimum wage is $7.25 per hour. The FLSA generally allows employers to take a tip credit and pay a minimum base wage of $2.13 per hour to tipped employees who regularly receive more than $30 per month in tips as long as the base wage and tips equal at least $7.25 per hour.

Many states and localities also have minimum wage laws with requirements that differ from the FLSA, including restrictions on taking a tip credit. If an employee is covered by more than one minimum wage law, the employee is entitled to the higher minimum wage. State rates that are lower than the FLSA aren't included in this chart because of the unlikelihood that both an employer and an employee are exempt from the FLSA. Review local minimum wages beginning on page 6.

This chart reflects the current state and local minimum and tipped wage rates in effect as of January 1, 2024. It does not include minimum wage requirements that apply to specific types of employers or employees (e.g. home health aides, minors) or to public contracts. The coverage column provides the general coverage of the law and not all the exemptions from coverage. If there is no information listed in the state's "coverage" column, then the state minimum wage law generally applies to all employers. If a state does not have a minimum wage law, then employers must comply with the FLSA. This chart does not include overtime, premium pay, or hazard pay requirements or cover additional requirements to take a tip credit beyond the monthly tip threshold.
